Last evening at the home of Mrs. Walter Doyle, in Pembroke Avenue, her daughter, Bessie, became the bride of Joseph V. Doyle, Jr. The ceremony being performed by Rev. Francis C. Steinhilber, rector of Christ Episcopal Church.

Quantities of palms, ferns, smilax and clusters of yellow chrysanthemums and dahlia decorated the house and an aisle through which the bride party marched to the improvised altar. The parlor was formed with broad, white ribbons, which were fastened by little Miss Sophie Mason, of Richmond, and Branch Johnson as they preceded the bride party to the altar.

An orchestra hidden by a mass of palms played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bride, preceded by maid of honor, entered the parlor on the arm of her brother, E. Fitzgerald Doyle.

The bride was dressed in ivory satin, embroidered in pearls and brilliants, and her tulle veil with cap of real lace was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Fannie Etheridge, who was the bride's only attendant, wore a gown of yellow chrysanthemum, draped in silver lace, and carried lavender orchids. Richard Etheridge, of Richmond, was the bride's best man.

Little Miss Mason wore a white lingerie frock, and Branch Johnson, who acted as ring bearer, wore a white tuxedo.

Southern smilax intertwined with coral vine festooned the stairway and arches, and vases of pink roses and carnations were used everywhere.

Preceding the entry of the bride party, "Love You Truly" was played by Miss Mary Williams, who also played the "Lohengrin" wedding march as the bride party entered the drawing-room, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. B. French, of the First Presbyterian Church. The bridesmaids of honor, Misses Bessie and Louise Marshall, sisters of the bride, entered first, followed by the bride, who came in on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the improvised altar by the groom and his best man, Chester Woolridge, of this city.

The bridesmaids were becomingly gowned in white embroidered velvet, fashioned with pink satin girdles, and their flowers were arm-bouquets of thyrse roses. The bride was gowned in a modish tan cloth suit, with hat and gloves to match. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.
